Estate: someone's net worth in the eyes of the law

Make decisions now so that you have a say in how your future plays out

 Last Will and Testament
A Will is the cornerstone of every estate plan. It allows you to communicate your wishes and make things easier for the people you care about. With a Will, everything you leave behind will be taken care of according to your wishes.

 Living Will
A Living Will is essential in spelling out your end of life decisions. If at any point you're unable to communicate your wishes, a Living Will assures that your own choices are being respected.

 Living Trust
Created during your lifetime (hence "living"), a Living Trust allows you to transfer your assets to a separate legal entity. It can help you provide for your children without the hassles of probate court.

 Power of Attorney
A POA lets you appoint a trusted family member to make financial and medical decisions on your behalf if you're ever incapacitated.

 Make a document
Our unique interview-style process makes creating documents quick and simple—no legalese involved

 Have a lawyer look it over
